Town of Louisburg, Franklin County clarify and align development maps

Louisburg, N.C. – Franklin County and the Town of Louisburg are working together to bring clarity and alignment to development maps.

Franklin County and the Town of Louisburg will be working on administrative alignment of zoning and territorial maps of the two entities to better provide accuracy for property owners.

Because of changes in land characteristics and technical revisions in mapping, town and county leadership sought to improve the accuracy of territorial and zoning maps to provide property owners clarity in the uses of their property. The process of administrative alignment is taking into account the comprehensive development plans and the continued growth of the town and the county.

“The Town of Louisburg is taking a proactive approach to developing the town,” said Philip Slayter, Louisburg’s planning & zoning administrator. “This process represents the increasing dialogue between the town and the county.”

In the coming weeks, town and county leadership will be providing public notices and information to affected and adjoining property owners about next steps. Their respective boards will be working toward having maps updated through appropriate statutory processes.
